Reflections from Rev Josh Jones

Today we come to the end of our exploration into the 5 Marks of Mission with Jeremy exploring the mission call that goes to the core of our present age challenge. Whatever anyone's perspective and opinions may be on all things 'climate change' there is the undeniable challenge from scripture for humanity to reverence the intrinsic sacred nature of all that God created and declared very good. It’s only from this fundamental understanding that we can live and move and have our very being in a ‘right relationship’ with the created order. (Kaitiakitanga) the good guardianship of all that God created is the natural outworking borne of this fundamental understanding. To love God with all our hearts, soul, mind and strength is to love, tend and treasure our sacred home of planet earth.

HOLY WEEK & EASTER

“Behold I am making all things new” Revelation 21:5

Next week our Lenten journey begins its culmination as we enter and engage with the momentous significance of Holy Week. We invite you to gather with us for the sacred worship occasions of Maundy Thursday, Good Friday and Easter Sunday. Holy scripture makes it clear that the Cross and Resurrection are the pivotal cosmic moments in the history of humanity, and what we gather to commemorate and contemplate the hope at the centre of our faith. The renewal of all creation. The Kingdom of God ‘breaking in’ as a recurring reality in the here and now, until the time of ultimate renewal yet to come. Please make a note of dates and times so we can share this significant time together.
